WHAT TO SEE PRANBURI

PRANBURI RIVER : Only 25 Kms. Down Hua Hin Beach visitors can enjoy 2 hours boat ride along the river, which passes through mangrove swamps rich bird and Pranburi river is interesting as the oldest place fishermen's village place in Prachuabkhirikhan.

BANGKOK GOLF MILFORD & RESORT : A golf course in Thailand. Spectacular Mountain & Ocean

scenery surrounding 18 holes of golfing pleasure. Superb greens & challenging tee shots await the golfer who will share. The adventure with a prolife bird life of all species including wild peacocks. Accommodation & golf packages available at adjacent hotel.

PRANBURI BUTTERFLY & ORCHID GARDEN : Is like stepping into another word. Cush green lawns, sweeping views and glittering lakes picture perfect scenery every day of the year just a short way from the city centre The Pranburi Butterfly & Orchid Garden landscape features winding paths lined with lush foliage and vistas and views.

KHAO SAM ROI YOT NATIONAL PARK : Thailand's first coastal park, the Three Hundred Peaks is a small but fascinating and marshy wetlands that is home to a great variety of plants, birds and some endangered animals. A wonderful and not too difficult place to explore. The park office is very helpful, providing maps, information about hiking trails, as well as guides and accommodation. Wear good walking shoes.

PHRAYA NAKHON CAVE : A huge and fascinating cave with a large hole on the roof through which sunlight shines, illuminating the cavern and its many Buddha images, and encouraging various plants to grow. King Rama V Visited the cave in 1890, when the beautiful Khuha Kharuhat Pavilion was built inside the entrance To honour the royal visitor. The pavilion is a must see for all visitors.

SAI AND KAEW CAVE : Also in Khao Sam Roi Yod Park. There are underworld time capsules. This ancient caverns have petrified waterfall, and monstrous limestone domes with danglry stone tentacles.

WHAT TO SEE HUA-HIN

HUA HIN BEACH : Tranquility is the big plus on this beautiful white-sanded beach, which stretches 5 kms from the centre of town to the rocky headland of Khao Takiap. Lined with hotels, condominiums and resort bungalows, the beach is a pleasant place to walk jog, swim, or relax in peace and quiet. The lack of a beach road restricts public access, while noisy jet scooters and motor boats are discouraged.

KHAO TAKIAB : The prominent hill at the south end of Hua Hin Beach, Khao Takiab (Chopstick Hill) has a temple on top renowned for its meditation practitioners. It's worth the climb up the steep stair case to the temple for the great views of the bay and countryside. Don't forget to take your camera. Popular seafood restaurants cluster round the base of Khao Takiab.

Vajiravudh as a summer residence in the mid 1920s. Its elegant two-storey pavilions face the sea, linked together by a series of elevated walkways. One pavilion was used occasionally as a theatre indulging the King's love of drama. The Palace of Love and Hope has been lovingly restored and provides a whistful setting to stroll around. Located in the grounds of King Rama 6 Military Camp, the palace is open daily from 08:00 - 16:00.

KAENG KRACHAN DAM

Completed in 1966, Kaeng Krachan Dam blocks the Phetchaburi River, creating a huge lake covering 45 sq. kms, complete with small wooded islands. The lake is home to many fish and bird species, and is a popular spot to sail or picnic on the bank. Boat trips can be organised at the park office. A Thai restaurant overlooks the reservoir.

KAENG KRACHAN NATIONAL PARK

Get back to nature and smell the flowers at Thailand's largest national park (2,915 sq. kms.) where a rich rainforest covers rugged mountains along the border with Myanmar. Besides the wide variety of flora and fauna, Kaeng Krachan is heaven for birdwatchers with over 400 species identified. Hire a guide to show you the elephants, tigers, leopards, bears and other animals in residence. The park headquarters has a few bungalows for rent, a dormitory, and a restaurant.

KHAO LUANG CAVE Petchaburi's most famous cave is full of Buddha images, many installed by King Mongkut who liked to picnic here. His son, King Chulalongkorn enshrined a magnificent Buddha image dedicated to his forefathers. Holes in the ceiling allow sunlight to dance over the images, creating a dramatic effect beloved by photographers. Best time for cameras is 2 - 3 pm.

PHRA NAKHON KHIRI The entrance to Petchaburi is dominated by a small hill known as Khao Wang (Palace Mountain), where King Mongkut built a summer palace in 1860 in neo-classical style. Named Phra Nakhon Khiri, it is now a Historic Park full of palace buildings, temples, halls, even an observatory where the King used to view the stars, all spread over three peaks. On the western peak is Wat Phra Keao, a replica of the Emerald Buddha Temple in Bangkok. But visitors should head for the superb palace structures, beautiful restored and turned into a national museum, full of priceless antiques, beautiful ceramics and sculptures. Gives you a great insight into royal life a century ago. A hillside railway provides easy access to the palace, which is open daily from 9.00-16.00

PHRRAM RACHANIVET This rainy season palace was built for King Chulalongkorn in 1916, modelled after Kaiser Wilhelms palace in Germany. Originally called Ban Puen Palace, the name was changed to Phrram Ratchanivet in 1918 when it was used to accommodate state visitors. This very structure with domes and brown tiled roof was renovated in 1987. Catch a glimpse of the colourful tiles in the dining room and main staircase, or study scenes from Petchaburi at the turn of the century.

SPRINGFIELD is generally considered as one of the premier golfing resorts of Thailand. The course is an enjoyable challenge for golfers of all standards the opening holes. There are mostly flanked by a series of hillocks covered by a forest of young trees, and the fairways thread their way through wellplaced the highest international standard. Hotel accommodations are available.
